H₂O₂ dependent biological signaling. This chapter summarizes the most recent knowledge on the reaction of H₂O₂ with cell components and cell signaling pathways. The review will focus on important aspects of H₂O₂-induced signaling in cell culture models as well as in vivo. The first part of the chapter reviews general properties of H₂O₂ and the influence of biological systems on the formation of this reactive oxygen species. The chapter also discusses the influence of H₂O₂ on many cell signaling pathways. A number of important aspects of the signaling reaction are covered. In particular, the chapter covers the activation of mitogen-activated protein kinases, including nuclear factor-kappaB, c-Jun N-terminal kinase, and p38 mitogen-activated protein kinase as well as the role of p66Shc, a new protein that is involved in H 1d6a3396d6
