SpeedItup is a very easy to use software utility designed to help you boost computer performance by optimizing critical parts of your operating system. Capable of working with RAM memory, Internet settings and hard-disk options, SpeedItup relies on a rather simple interface that makes it a tool addressed to both beginners and more experienced users. The interface is organized in tabs, each with intuitive names, so it's easy to pick only the tool you need. The main window displays the total and free RAM, total virtual RAM and Windows uptime, while the bottom of the window is being used by the aforementioned tabs. The “Speed It Up” screen optimizes Windows, the RAM, cleans the Internet and speeds up the hard-disk using the predefined settings, but you can always configure each of these tools individually. The “Internet CleanUp” tab comes with multiple options, allowing you to erase autocomplete information, Windows files that contain visited websites, Internet cache, form data and history logs. A very good thing about the application is a dedicated tool hidden in the “Options” screen that gives you the power to automatically optimize computer when system is not busy. SpeedItup does what it says, but this isn't surprising at all, as the market is already full of similar apps doing exactly the same thing and even more. On the good side however, SpeedItup works like a charm on all Windows workstations, obviously without slowing down the system and running on low resources all the time. File size: 1.3 MB SpeedItup 2.4.4.356 Free speed optimization tool designed to make your PC run faster speedItup will optimize your system and accelerate your computer running by removing unwanted programs and clearing your browser cache, so you will have a faster, more stable and efficient operating system.
